APNM Seeks Nominations for 2011 Milagro Awards

Tell us about New Mexicans who integrate humane acts toward animals into their daily lives. Animal Protection of New Mexico (APNM) seeks nominations for its 2011 Milagro Awards which recognize individual and collaborative humanitarian acts on behalf of animals.

New Mexico organizations, businesses and individuals may be nominated in the following categories, except for the Animal Award category, which is for animal nominees only:

Advocacy Award: for promoting the compassionate treatment of animals;

Animal Award: for exceptional animal courage and/or intelligence (animal nominees only);

Board of Directors' Award: for lifelong commitment to animal rights;

Direct Animal Services Award: for efforts that directly improved the lives of animals; for alleviating the pain and suffering of companion animals, farm animals, livestock and/or wildlife;

Executive Director's Award: for outstanding support of APNM's mission and program;

Humane Citizen Award: for efforts by a private citizen to promote the humane treatment of animals using a variety of approaches and methods;

Humane Education Award: for innovative classroom, public, private or civic education efforts that foster humane ethics in youth;

Lawmaking Advocacy Award: for efforts that result in the passage of animal protection legislation;

Mary Jane García Champion for Animals Award: for exceptional leadership, courage and persistence in the face of opposition, resulting in positive change for animals;

Media Award: for spotlighting animal issues with courage, creativity and integrity;

Spirit of the Mission Award: for actions that bring about precedent-setting change with a national impact, which advances the animal rights movement;

Youth Award: for youth activism, ethics and bravery.

Nomination Guidelines:

The selection committee looks for nominees:

- whose accomplishments reflect APNM's mission of affecting systemic change for animals;
- whose work benefits New Mexico's animals;
- who have a proven and demonstrable track record of successes which has the potential for lasting impact;
- and who demonstrate fiscal integrity in the projects they undertake.

The guidelines above apply to all award nominees except for the Animal Award. The selection committee bases its decisions on awards exclusively on the content and quality of the nomination submitted. No further research on nominees will be conducted by the committee.

The 2011 Milagro Awards will be held October 1, 2011 at the Eldorado Hotel in Santa Fe.

Nominations MUST be postmarked by May 6, 2011.
